POWER PLAYERS

PINNACLE OF LEADERSHIP

SPECIAL EDITION

Recognizing the South Carolina 2013 Power Players

The South Carolina Chamber of Commerce's legislative victories are made possible by business leaders who recognize the value of investing in the work we do on their behalf. Many businesses choose to invest in the South Carolina Chamber at exceptional levels. These companies are part of the Pinnacle of Leadership program, the Chamber's highest level of commitment, and make an annual investment of $5,000 or more. Each Pinnacle company has its own reasons for investing at such an outstanding level, but they all share a common goal: They want to make South Carolina a better place to do business.

I hope you will take a look at this publication and recognize the tremendous commitment these companies have made to improving South Carolina. These businesses not only provide financial support, but also enable their employees to offer their time and expertise to help the Chamber in a variety of ways. They serve on our board and committees, provide input towards our annual legislative agenda and contact legislators to urge passage of pro-business legislation.

Without the dedication of these organizations, the Chamber would not have achieved the legislative successes it has over the years, including passing comprehensive tort reform, workers' compensation reform and unemployment insurance tax relief for employers. All of these achievements will save South Carolina businesses millions of dollars. When you see fellow business leaders from the Pinnacle of Leadership, please take the time to thank them for their investment in South Carolina's business community.

As I travel South Carolina to meet with business leaders, talk to various organizations and participate in board meetings, I regularly tout the support our Pinnacle of Leadership members provide. In order to continue to grow economic development opportunities in South Carolina and maintain our state's pro-business environment, we need to grow our Pinnacle of Leadership program so the Chamber can build relationships with dynamic, influential companies like the ones listed in this publication. I encourage you to join the Pinnacle of Leadership. Together, we can make South Carolina a leading destination for businesses on a global level.

Otis Rawl is president and chief executive officer of the South Carolina Chamber of Commerce.

Our founder's drive to increase South Carolina's ability to flourish still shapes our activities today. Among our diverse range of practices, we represent companies that seek to move to or expand in South Carolina and we counsel municipal, county and state development officials on ways to attract and retain those companies. McNair shares in the South Carolina Chamber's vision to foster an environment where businesses and the community can thrive. For more information about McNair, visit www.mcnair.net.

DIXON HUGHES GOODMAN LLP

What is the business climate in South Carolina? We get that question quite often. Our clients look to us as a barometer of the business climate in the state. Although we have no pat answer, we do see plenty of reasons to be positive.

The South Carolina Chamber of Commerce, along with other key business leaders, has promoted job growth as a leading indicator. At Dixon Hughes Goodman, we are doing our part to recruit and retain top accounting talent. We have added a number of CPAs in our offices from the Upstate to the Lowcountry. As a firm, we were recently recognized by Accounting Today magazine as being among the fastest growing firms in the U.S and as the largest firm headquartered in the Southeast. We are especially proud of our Leadership College which enrolls over 200 interns annually from the top universities. Many of these interns will join our firm upon graduation to begin their career.

So our response is "South Carolina is a great place to live and work and business is on the rise around the state." Thank you to the South Carolina Chamber of Commerce for all that you do.
